I posted an alert about resubscribing to QRP-L to:

rec.radio.info
rec.radio.amateur.misc
r.r.a.antennas
r.r.a.homebrew
r.r.a.digial.misc

Thanks to Tim AB50U...I've been alerted that we all were unsubscribed from QRP-L at Netcom.com.

I was able to confirm his info (see forwarded message below). I resubscribed by sending email to: LISTSERV@netcom.com with no subject and the msg was: subscribe QRP-L

The only thing it accepts after "subscribe QRP-L" is an address... but if you put nothing there, it assumes you mean the reply address on your email. If you put your name there, it will send an error message back.

You can see how many are on the list by sending an email to:
LISTSERV@netcom.com -- no subject -- put msg: who QRP-L and the list of current subscribers (about 15) comes back.

SO RESUBSCRIBE YOURSELF NOW! :^)

And send a copy of this message to a couple of others who you know are on QRP-L...because they will need to resubscribe...

Until N1IST (got only his answering machine) is able to alert or restore the original mailing list, this round-robin method may be the only way to bring most people back quickly.

Steve:
Tried all of the segments, times and bands, but no luck. Never heard a peep.

Then, I didn't get any qrp-l traffic for several days. Today I discovered that I was no longer a subscriber to qrp-l. Guess the list got wiped out somehow. I resubscribed and found only 15 others on the list. Guess there was a major problem. You are not on the list when I send 'WHO QRP-L' to LISTSERV@NETCOM.COM. Just thought you'd like to know. Did you get anyone on Thursday? Merry Xmas.

Because the Daemon of anti-Xmas unsubscribed everyone, I've alerted the CribSheet members (more than 60 addresses) to resubscribe.

I called N1IST and left a message on his answering machine to alert him to the problem.

I foolishly have not keep an updated copy of the subscriber list.

Please email to friends on the list and let them know that they should resubscribe. Let's get it rolling again.
